R.B. CALDWELL HEADS M. U. UNION BACKERS

Organization Effected, With Officers of Students and Alumni.

WILL PLAN WORK

Question of Merging Present
Association With New One Discussed.

The board of directors of the Student-Alumni Union elected officers at its first meeting yesterday afternoon. They are: President, R. B. Caldwell; vice-president, Ray E. Miller; recording secretary, Don D. Patterson; corresponding secretary, H. H. Kinyon; treasurer, S. F. Conley. A manager will be selected later.

The Alumni Association was given the power of authorizing the financing of committees, and the question of merging the Alumni Association into the Missouri Union was discussed. A committee consisting of the newly elected officers will consider this question and report its decision at the next meeting of the board, July 1.

The committee will also investigate the unions in other universities, and consider the part the women of the University will have in the Union Building.

TALKED UNION AT LUNCHEON

Student President and Others Explained Idea to Alumni.

The Student-Alumni Union idea was a favorite subject of discussion at all the gatherings of Missouri alumni here this week. It also dominated the after-dinner talks at the annual alumni luncheon yesterday at Rothwell Gymnasium.

Ed S. North, '05, of Kansas City, who was toastmaster, opened the program by pointing out the value of a Union Building for the University and urging all alumni who were not familiar with the proposition to make a study of it.

George H. Moore, '01, of St. Louis, spoke of the privilege of being an alumnus of the University and of the duty of the graduate after leaving the University. It is the graduates of Missouri, he said, who are to take the lead in public affairs in Missouri in the future and keep the state abreast of the times.

E. C. Mead, student president, and Miss Eleanor Halley spoke for the class of '16. Mr. Mead urged the alumni to promote the Union Building.

"The Union will be the means of promoting democratic influences in the student body," he said. "It will serve as the headquarters for homecoming alumni. Not enough of the alumni keep in touch with their Alma Mater as they should. The Union will encourage them to do so. The Union will also be a connecting link between the alumni and student body. It will be the means of bringing them together."

Mr. Mead said the most valuable thing the graduate of this University takes away with him is the Missouri spirit. The ideals and traditions of the University are never forgotten, he held.

Miss Halley spoke on "What the University Women are Doing." She told of the increase in the attendance of girls at the university and the work of the Woman's Self-Government Association. The association, through its loan fund, has met the demands of nearly twenty needy girls this year, she said.

Among the other speakers called on by the toastmaster was Dr. C. F. Marbut, an alumnus of the University, who is now chief of the division of soil survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, and upon whom was conferred the honorary LL. D. degree yesterday.

E. C. Anderson Would Be Prosecutor.

Emmett C. Anderson filed his candidacy for prosecuting attorney of Boone County with the county clerk late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Anderson has served as prosecutor before but at the last election was defeated for the nomination by W. M. Dinwiddie. Mr. Dinwiddie filed for re-election about two weeks ago.

Weather Conditions.

The western low pressure wave, of which mention was made in yesterday's report, traveled from Kansas northeast to Michigan, crossing the Mississippi River last night. It was attended by thunderstorm squalls when crossing Missouri and Iowa, and they continue to be the marked feature of the disturbance as it progresses northeast. The resulting precipitation has been limited to parts of Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and Michigan and to the Northwest border states. Generally fair weather prevails elsewhere.

From and including the lower plains, east and south temperatures are seasonable; but in the upper plains and Rocky Mountains the weather is too cool for this time of the year. It is near freezing in Nevada, Southern Utah and Southern Colorado.

Fair, pleasant weather is indicated for Columbia for the next two or three days.

The school was organized in 1906 and affiliated with the University. In 1909 the affiliation was changed to Washington University, and in 1913 the school became a department of that university. From February, 1915, to May of this year the school was independent, but at the meeting of the Board of Curators of the University was again taken over by the University for management and partial support, with the view of eventually assuming complete control.

Prof. George B. Mangold, who was instructor in the sociology department of the University in 1909 and who has been connected with the School of Economy since, will be director. Special lectures will be given by Dr. Charles A. Ellwood, Prof. L. L. Bernard and Dr. M. P. Ravenel of the University.

GIRLS KEEP ROOMS NEAT WITHOUT PRIZE, THEY SAY

"Girls keep their rooms cleaner and neater than boys."

"The roomers in my house have been perfect ladies the whole school year."

"Keeping girl roomers is a pleasure."

"Girls do not need prizes to keep their rooms clean."

And so in retaliation to the prize-winning boy roomers comes the statement from a landlady on Missouri Avenue who keeps girl roomers. "I have tried both girls and boys," she says, "and I will take girls in preference every time."

"If I were to give a prize for the best kept room I wouldn't know whom to give it to," remarked another landlady. "All the girls are very careful. Strange to say, the majority in my house are studying domestic science. That may account for their careful housekeeping."

To prove their side of the case, the girls seem to be eager to explain their housekeeping ability.

"It's perfectly simple to explain," said one fair co-ed this morning. "We girls have an instinct for housekeeping; the boys have to acquire their ability, and the landlady just has to give them a prize to help them along."

LIQUOR GIVEN BACK TO KELLY

City Can Find No Breach of Law, So Drinks Are Returned.

"Ninety-six bottles hanging on the wall; take all the bottles down from the wall," is the new version of the old song as adopted by the Columbia forces of law and authority. These ninety-six bottles, captured by the local police about a month ago when four negroes were arrested for bringing the liquor into the city by automobile, have apparently closed their troublesome career, but not without considerable playing of the game called "passing the buck."

The mysterious bottles were stored in the police station, where they had been carefully kept, pending a decision of the owner, Bruz Kelly, as to their placing. Kelly having been released for lack of evidence, the bottles remained, not without covetous glances from many. This morning Judge John N. Bicknell was authority for the statement that some of the bottles had been stolen from the station two nights ago.

The police were close-mouthed and non-committal, declaring that the whereabouts of the bottles was a matter of adjustments in the business of the police court. The chief of police was not to be found, but his subordinates entertained little hope of his being more talkative than they.

Mayor Batterson scoffed at the idea that the bottles could have been stolen. While he did not say that all the bottles had changed hands, he started very emphatically that the liquor had been returned to Kelly on his application for it, there being no legal reason why it should not be returned, since no case had been proved against him.

"While bootlegging may be suspected, we have not been able to prove it," says the mayor, "and Kelly swears that the liquor is his, and that it is for his own consumption. If, as he claims, he can drink three pints of whisky a day, we cannot doubt his ability to handle the amount of liquor."

Frank Harris, counsel for Kelly when the case was tried, says it was his understanding that all the liquor has been returned, because of lack of evidence that there was any breach of law.

Kelly claims to have possession of the entire lot, not only the whisky, but the delectable blackberry cordial and port wine. He also says that every bottle has been marked by the police in order that bootlegging may be detected.
